Dear Sir

These are beautiful, but the misfortune is that the scrolls are so very small - One line is obliged to be divided into two parts -

Do you think they may be shortened, thus.

1 — Oud & old books, in good faith
cometh all this new science.

(which gets rid of the Anglo Saxon).

2 — The Moniment of vanished minds

3. Asembled souls of all that men held wise

If you do not sanction these abbreviations, I must beg you to continue.

the present.

Mopett sent for Pope this line by Savage, he was uncertain as he had not a look and thought he recollected it

'As nature varies, and as and complete Bene you the candour to prefer that to 'Every warbler' yes..?

Adieu to Sir

ever most truly yours

Deane.
